Original script and scene plan - 1 of 2

0:00 - A clear plan helps

Today, Jordan prepares supply kits by following a short work plan. A clear plan tells you what to do, what you need, and how to know the task is finished. You may need spoken directions, pictures, a model, or a checklist. Asking for an accessible instruction is a useful work skill. Watch Jordan use the plan one step at a time.

0:30 - Listen before you start - Worksheet 1

Listen to the whole direction before starting when it is safe to wait. Jordan stops handling supplies while the teacher explains the order. If listening alone is hard, ask the teacher to show the step or provide a picture. People process information in different ways. You can use the communication and attention supports that help you understand the job.

1:00 - Check the instruction - Worksheet 2

Check the instruction by showing or repeating what you understand. Jordan points to the order card and says, two pencils and one folder. The teacher confirms the order. You can point, sign, speak, or use a device. Checking early can prevent confusion later. If the instruction is too long, ask for a shorter step or a picture list.

1:30 - Organize your materials - Worksheet 3

Organize materials before you begin the task. Jordan places pencils in one bin, folders in another, and the picture order within reach. A clear work area can make it easier to find the next item. Only gather approved materials. If a tool is unfamiliar or something looks unsafe, stop and ask the supervisor before using it.

2:00 - Use one step at a time - Worksheet 4

Follow the steps in the order the supervisor gives. Jordan first counts pencils, then adds a folder, then checks the kit. A picture checklist shows which step comes next. You can cover later steps or use a marker to show your place. Working in an order does not mean racing. Take the time and support you need to do the task safely.

2:30 - Watch the kit take shape

Watch the work plan in action. Jordan looks at the first picture, counts two pencils, and places them in the kit. Next, Jordan adds one folder. Finally, Jordan compares the packed kit with the picture order. Each action has a clear place in the sequence. The teacher can model a step or provide another cue if Jordan asks.

3:00 - Finish the assigned task - Worksheet 5

Finish the assigned task before reporting it complete. Jordan prepares the number of kits requested by the teacher and keeps the completed ones together. If time runs out or a supply is missing, tell the supervisor what remains. You can ask whether to continue, pause, or change the task. An honest update is more useful than guessing that unfinished work is done.

3:30 - Ask for clarification - Worksheet 6

Clarification means getting a direction made clearer. Jordan is not sure which shelf holds the finished kits and asks, can you show me where these go? A picture, a demonstration, or a shorter sentence can help. You can request clarification with speech, sign, a help card, or a device. Asking protects both your learning and the quality of the work.

4:00 - Check the result - Worksheet 7

Compare the result with the original instruction. Jordan checks every kit against the picture order. If something is missing, Jordan asks how to correct it and checks again. The result might also need a count, a matching label, or a supervisor’s review. A checklist helps you notice what is finished and what still needs attention.

4:30 - Report what is done - Worksheet 8

Report the completed work to the supervisor. Jordan shows the checked kits and says, these three kits are ready. Jordan also explains that one extra folder was set aside because it was torn. A clear report tells someone what is finished and anything that still needs a decision. Your report can be spoken, pointed to on a checklist, or shared through a device.

5:00 - Practice a three-step school job

With staff permission, choose a small school job and a three-step picture plan. Gather the materials, complete the job, and check the result. Ask your supervisor to include a planned opportunity for clarification, such as choosing a shelf. You may use a partner’s model or other support. The goal is understanding the routine, not completing it quickly.

5:30 - A good plan includes support

You practiced listening, checking instructions, organizing materials, following steps, finishing, clarifying, checking results, and reporting. You can ask for directions in a form you understand. A good work plan includes the support you need. Try the review game, then practice your three-step school job with a teacher. Notice one step that became clearer and one step to practice again.
